Holding faith and a good conscience is required through prayer for those in authority. It will cause us to lead a quiet and peaceful life.	Speaking to the mountain is required to fight unbelief.	As a wise ruler, you are required to watch and stay prepared until due season.	When your assignment is finished, you can sit still. God will not be in rest until the finished work is revealed.	Because the work is finished from the foundation of the world, all that's needed is mercy and grace.	When you slay your enemies, you will have peace.

We are required to depart from evil speaking and pursue peace instead.	Separation from contamination is required. It will enable you to stand, read the word, confess the word, and worship God.	The wise speak wisdom and are preserved.	Our blessings are contingent on our will and our obedience. Until we walk in obedience, the task is not finished.	The great mercies of our redeemer outweighs our momentary difficulties. We are required to keep our eye on the rainbow.	We have peace through the blood; all tests and trials are reconciled by the blood.

Peace requires established judgment and justice. Keep your feet on the enemy's neck. God's zeal covers us.	Destroying the enemy is required to divide the land. This is preparation for the promised seed to reign.	The wise will do what is required to possess the uttermost parts of the earth: revering the word and arming the Son.	Strength and good courage are required to finish our service for God.		We are required to seek the peace of God and not let our hearts be troubled.
	44 CHIEF Pages: 130-131 Ezra 9:1-2	40 COVENANT OF PROMISE Pages: 122-123 1 Kings 5:10-12
	To whom more is given, more is required. If the holy seed is not separated from the world, it becomes the chief in trespass and weakens a weaker person's conscience.	Participating in the covenant of giving and receiving will cause God to give you the promised wisdom.
